

BOY TELLS HOW CLARE BEAT HIS WIFE TO DEATH

Fourteen-Year-Old Son Relates Story of Murder in Long Island Hotel.

SAW HIS MOTHER KICKED

Knocked Down Repeatedly, Woman Was Left Alone to Die in Cold Room.

A very polite and pale little boy climbed into the witness chair in the Supreme Court in Long Island City this afternoon. He was an unwilling witness against his father, James J. Clare, who is on trial for the murder of his wife on March 16 last. The boy gave his full name, Daniel Noble Clare. He is fourteen years old, but years of fear and ill treatment have stunted his growth. He lived with his parents in their hotel at Queens Boulevard and Pitting Street, Long Island City.

"How did your father treat your mother during the last two years?" asked the prosecutor.

"He was always fighting her, sir," replied the boy. His blue eyes filled with tears and his throat twitched, but in a few moments he got himself together and went on.

"Papa would follow mamma from one room to another and knock her down and kick her. When she would get up he would knock her down again and kick her and call her names and curse her. I would not repeat what he said. Once mamma went over to her mother in New York and stayed two weeks to get well. When she came home she went up the back stairs. Papa found her upstairs and said: 'Well, you're back, are you, you bum?' and kicked her around the room. I tried to stop him. Mamma went into the bathroom to wash the blood off her face and he followed her and kicked her again. 'Mamma and I used to sneak out in the middle of the night and go over to New York to grandma's. We'd wait till mamma got better and go back home. Sometimes we'd sneak out of the house by the back way in the daytime.

"The Wednesday night before mamma was hurt she and I went to a moving picture show. When we got home papa was out on an auto ride. Mamma and I went to bed in room No. 1. Papa got home at 6 o'clock in the morning. He said to mamma: 'Get up, you bum, and get me the money.' Mamma didn't have a chance to get the money, for he began fighting her. He knocked her down and kicked her. She had a kimono on. He kept knocking her down and kicking her and he took her by the hair and dragged her. 'She got to room No. 2 and got the money and fell down, and he followed her and kicked her. She got back into room No. 1 and gave him the money. Papa always ran after mamma whenever she went, and I followed and tried to get him to go downstairs. He knocked her on the floor. Then he went into the parlor and sat in the rocking chair and kept saying: 'Bum! Bum! Bum!' over and over again. Then papa went up to the third floor and went to bed and to sleep.

"I put mamma in bed and covered her up. When I got home from school that day mamma was lying on the floor near the radiator with no clothes on. She couldn't talk to me. I went downstairs to speak to papa, and he said: 'Go upstairs and see what your mother is doing.' I went up, and mamma couldn't speak to me. I tried to give her a drink and she couldn't drink. That night I went to grandma's, but I came back. My papa was in his saloon. He said to me: 'If I go up there I'll kill her.'

"Papa and I went up to bed together. In the morning I found my mamma on the floor. I tried to put her in the bed, but she was too heavy. She had no clothes on. I was ashamed to call anybody. I put a blanket over her and went downstairs.

"In the afternoon when papa was called up to look at mamma he said: 'Oh, she's taken poison. What shall I do? Everybody will say that I did it! Give her some milk. Give her a rub-down.'

Clare turned a ghastly white while his body was testifying. The lad didn't look at his father, but looked straight at the District Attorney and told his story as steadily as he could. When tears stopped him, he took out his handkerchief and dried his eyes and went on.

"I heard Clara come home very early Thursday morning," testified Patrick J. Kelly, the hotel porter. "I heard her screaming: 'Oh, my God! Oh, my God! When I heard Clara say, 'Give me my money or I'll kill you!' The woman screamed for maybe fifteen minutes after that, and then everything was quiet."

Mrs. Barbara Lucas, mother of Mrs. Clare, testified that during the last two years her daughter had been beaten by Clare no fewer than seven times, and that she came to her last March with her body covered with bruises which she said had been inflicted by her husband.

GIVES HOME TO CHILDREN.

Jersey Assemblyman Makes Gift as Memorial to Wife.

Assemblyman Ogden H. Hammond of Somerset County, N. J., today concluded arrangements for the purchase of the Valencia Club, No. 1006 Park Avenue, Hoboken, which he will convert into a home for destitute children as a memorial to his wife, who was lost on the Lusitania. Rheingold Beer

Not so very long ago housewives in this country made their own beer. The making of beer was as essential as the making of bread. Now the making of beer for everybody has been taken over by the great breweries, just as the bread-making is being taken care of by the great bakeries, because it can be done better. Rheingold Beer is as pure and wholesome as if it were made in your own kitchen.

Tomorrow, Saturday with a Day of Courtesy

Several Hundred Thousand Garments Will Be on Sale.

Crossing the Atlantic on the homeward way, the ship's clock is set forward a certain amount of time each day to give the passengers the extra day gained by coming westward.

This year the White Sale clock is put forward a day that our Saturday visitors who may not be able to come Monday also may be able to share in the good things to be gained on the opening day.

NEW, SPECIALLY PRICED UNDERCLOTHES FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS, BLOUSES, NEGLIGEEES, PETTICOATS, SMOCKS, APRONS, HOUSE DRESSES, CLOTHES FOR LITTLE CHILDREN, CORSETS, BRASSIERES AND HOUSEHOLD LINENS—THESE FORM THE 1916 WHITE SALE.

It is the Fifty-ninth Sale of White offered by the Wanamaker Store—and it was this house of business that originated the White Sale in America.

It offers fine things at once-in-six-months' prices. Things woven properly, cut well and made carefully. Sizes that fit. Fashions new and interestingly original.

Prices are low. In the face of conditions they are amazingly low. Everything in the make-up of the sale has advanced in price. Cotton materials are high, lace and embroideries are scarce and high, sewing thread is expensive, even pins, paper, boxes and cord for the packages are up.

Close co-operation with our regular makers has enabled us to avoid most of the difficulties. White Sale supplies were ordered nearly a year ago in many cases. Fashions are of the latest hour because the materials have only lately been made up. Everything is new.

UNDERCLOTHES ARE WIDE AND GROWING WIDER. NEW BLOUSES ARE SIMPLE AND FRILLS ARE NOT FORGOTTEN. NEGLIGEEES ARE PRACTICAL AS WELL AS PRETTY. PETTICOATS HAVE THE WHOLE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE SILHOUETTE.

The entire Third floor, the Main Aisle, Main floor, and the Linen Store on the First floor will be great snowy caverns of the White Sale.

White Sale Underclothes

They introduce the wide

bouffant silhouette of the Paris mode.

They are of soft, fine materials—rose, mauve, maize, blue and white batiste, checked nainsook, striped flaxon, plaid voile.

Many garments are exclusive copies of new lingerie styles recently imported by us from exclusive Paris designers.

Philippine hand made cluny, Point de Paris, novelty Valenciennes and novelty filet are some of the laces used.

Sturdy hand-loom, embroidered and copies of the beautiful Madeira work are employed.

Ribbons of delicate shades add gay prettinesses with their long bows and short bows and knotted ends.

Nightgowns, 85c to $2.50. Envelope chemises, 85c to $1.85. Corset covers, 15c to $1.75. Combinations, $1 to $7.50. Chemises, 50c to $4.50. Sports petticoats, $1 to $3. Dress petticoats, $1 to $3.50. Drawers, 50c to $5.

Paris Lingerie and Blouses

Within the last two weeks five huge cases have come from Paris, containing hand-made blouses and hand made lingerie.

Brides ordering their trousseaux will wish to take quick advantage of these white things which have come so far.

The Far East has quite an important part in this Sale. The Philippine lingerie is lovely. Its hand embroidery designs often copy the rich but they usually introduce at the same time a motif of their favorite drawn work.

The garments are cut over our own patterns and are generally made by hand. Prices are moderate, a nightgown at $2.50, a combination at $3 and so on.

Japanese lingerie is of silk hand embroidered—the gowns $3 to $5.75; corset covers, $3.50 and $4.50; envelope chemises, $3.75.
